

Janet Loebach, P.Eng.
Professional Engineers Ontario
PhD in urban development
University of Western Ontario

ENGINEERS CANADA - TD MELOCHE MONNEX SCHOLARSHIPS

Having received her bachelor's degree in civil engineering and society, Janet pursued a master's in environmental design and is now a PhD candidate in urban and health geography at the University of Western Ontario.

Her PhD studies are focusing on investigating the influences of our built environment on the health and behaviour of vulnerable populations, such as children, the elderly, and geographically isolated groups, with the goal of impacting how we grow and develop our cities in a way that actually helps people. Janet is also currently in the process of pursuing certification in community-based participatory research through the Wellesley Institute in Toronto.